I have always loved the arts and grew up with a family that was very supportive of the creative side of life. But I also grew up Mormon. I wouldn't say I had the most challenging childhood, in fact it was quite enjoyable. I loved drama and dancing, and studied both in and out of school. My parents were very strict at times, but still really great people and could be reasoned with. It wasn't until I started modeling more glamour that I started to have some problems both with my family and childhood friends.

I went to church all the time as a child, and for any of you that are familiar with the Mormon religion you'd know it's a pretty intense one. 3 hours of church on Sundays, lessons throughout the weeknights, activities, conferences, and throughout high school I woke up earlier than most to have a separate bible class before going to school. No drinking, no smoking, anything that changed the natural state of your body, no dating until 16 (and then it was only double dating) no sleep overs, I had to wear certain things, and couldn't wear a lot more, and a lot of other rules I wasn't so fond of as a child.

I loved drama and went to Sheridan for Performing Arts. Studying voice, dance, acting and tech in theatre. I loved my classes and made great friends. And let's say a lot of those friends were gay. I was in theatre school so it's bound to happen.. And I am one for equal rights and always will be. Mormons however think such a thing is a sin. I had a hard time with this fact. Dating a boy for three years prior to college I actually ended up breaking up with him due to how ignorant his parents were. They outright hated gays, and I almost screamed at them one day for saying something very ignorant. Then dancing for artists such as Shawn Desman and other great Toronto performers, and of course we were to wear some sexy outfits. My parents of course started getting concerned at this point. It was a hard thing for them to see and deal with, like I said they love the arts but within reason.

PLAYBOY

When my parents learned of my first publication with playboy in which I was tremendously proud of, they had asked me if I was hard up for money. They believed there couldn't be any other reason for me to do such a thing. I got texts and texts full of concern and disappointment. I was one of the harder issues I had to deal with. Just before my luck with Playboy Mexico I also had a cancer scare, luckily I was OK after being tested and made a few changes to my diet to help combat future issues. I had prepared for the worse, and came to terms with such a life changing scare, but saying I was in the clear really made me appreciate my life more.

MODELING IS THERAPEUTIC

Modeling has been one of the greatest things I've done with my life, it makes me feel very happy and I love dressing up and down. Being happy with myself is much more important to me than other people's approval, I'm sure some people think very rude things of me, or they simply think nothing of me. I think for many girls in this industry it happens. People in the outside world can tend to have a very narrow minded perspective on why girls get into this line of work, thinking many of us are attention seekers and uneducated bimbos. I would have to say that it is quite the opposite, I've met so many wonderful ladies and men in this industry, who have degrees, love life and are very intelligent. We just love this world and know one day our looks will fade and we have a limited time to create the images we want to look at once we grow older.

As a child I always wanted to be a pilot, and who knows, maybe once I get fed up with modeling or it gets fed up of me I will go back to school for aviation. I also would love to learn photography, get my yoga certification and backpack across Asia and Europe. Life is what we make it, and it's meant to be lived. If I listened to all the negativity I've gotten in this world when I started modeling I wouldn't be happy today.

GLAMOUR 101 MODELING

BY HEATHER SHANHOLTZ

DATING WITHIN THE INDUSTRY

IS IT ETHICALLY CORRECT TO DATE A FELLOW COWORKER WITHIN THE INDUSTRY?

The modeling and entertainment industry is very hectic so dating becomes difficult. Jealousy comes into play a lot of times and is very detrimental to one's relationship. If you are serious about your job, then you are constantly busy and really don't have any other way to get out on the dating scene besides dating sites or meeting someone in a bar or club, which personally I don't recommend, as I don't date anyone I meet in that type of a setting. Anyone involved in the entertainment industry that is successful or focused on being so is always on the go so it is hard to find that special someone. When it comes to work you are generally attracted to the other person over time which is actually better when it comes to dating in the industry.

THE PROS

There are many pros about dating in the industry and you should definitely get to know the other person before jumping into a relationship or even prior to dating. By working with that person you get to know them and can also get closer with them. When working with someone you get to realize who they really are and what their goals and aspirations are and this all comes naturally versus meeting someone in a different type of setting where you don't even know if they are even being truthful with you from the beginning. A relationship within the industry could potentially last longer due to a better understanding of exactly what goes on in each other's lives versus someone that isn't in the industry and doesn't understand it fully. If you are working for the same company it also allows you to spend more time with one another. Just like any work setting stress sets in and dating someone in the industry could help alleviate that stress. If your significant other can see you are stressed out it's easier for them to help you out and go that extra mile for you and in the end it will only bring you closer. Dating outside of the industry is hard also because your partner won't fully understand why you are constantly busy, things come up and get rescheduled all the time and if you travel like I do it's hard to maintain any type of a relationship. If you are dating someone in the industry they will understand and get it a lot more than the previous statement. The industry is really such a small circle if you really think about it. Everyone knows everyone or knows someone that knows someone. It's easier to find out opinions about your partner from friends and get advice on whether or not that other person is a good match for you.

THE CONS

There are also cons of dating someone involved in your industry. If you were to start a relationship you can be sure that other people are going to gossip about you. This industry is tough and everybody talks about everybody and gossips anyway, especially if you are involved in a relationship with someone you work with. That's just the way it is. It's unavoidable and inevitable. You should try to be open about a new relationship instead of trying to hide it because it will only create more gossip. Jealousy from others will also come into play which is why a lot of people talk behind your back. Having a relationship will provoke others to feel like your significant other or yourself are benefiting in certain situations and that they are missing out on something. If you are working constantly together too much time can also be detrimental to your relationship and kill the romance. Blaming one another when things go wrong with work could also cause an ugly fight. You want to protect your partner but you have to do what is best for business and not get your personal feelings involved. If you do decide to breakup it's extremely hard to deal with especially the one being dumped. It creates even more gossip and could cause you to lose work due to lack of professionalism because of getting your feelings involved with work. There is also such a thing as being in sync or having too much in common. The relationship could become boring.

Personally I like to have a balance of things I have in common with a significant other. It balances you out and keeps you on your toes. Choose wisely whether or not you think you can date within the industry and carefully think about it before making any decisions that could affect your career. Dating is tough as it is and could be even tougher when you are dating someone in the same field as yourself. There are many pros and cons and dating within the industry could be the right thing for you or it very well may not be. It's your decision and if you think you can handle it I say go for it but be ready for a lot of gossip and constant pressure and be sure that you have great communication between one another if you want it to work out. If you feel at all that you or your loved one could not handle the pressure then don't even get involved. After all, it is your life and you decide what you make of it. Just be careful with whatever decision you make and always think things through.

Love Heather!

DISCOVERY OF THE MONTH

KAYLA MARIE

PHOTOGRAPHY: RICK TROTTIER

{ SOMETIMES YOU MEET A MODEL THAT SIMPLY BLOWS YOU AWAY WITH TALENT }

Q&A WITH KAYLA

My name is Kayla Marie, and I am a 24 year old model from Worcester, MA. I have been modeling for almost 5 years now and love every moment of it. I am a happy girl in my most all that I do in my life, but I am at my happiest when I am in front of the camera creating beautiful, sexy pics for magazines, advertisements and promotional gigs.

HOW DID YOU GET INVOLVED WITH GLAMOUR MODELING?

My start in modeling came when a photographer named Gabe Calder found me on Facebook and asked me to shoot. My second shoot was at Light Works Studio. Mike Misialek asked me to attend one of the Friday Night events Rick Trottier use to organize. It was there that I met Rick. I have worked with a lot of photographers since then including Mike and Gabe, but Rick and I have worked together steadily since that Friday night almost four years ago. We form a very successful team because we are driven to succeed and know each other well.

WHO INSPIRED YOU IN BECOMING A GLAMOUR MODEL?

I've been mostly inspired by the models I see in fashion and men's magazines, as well as catalogs like Victoria's Secret. I have always wanted to do what they do and succeed like they have. Rick has also inspired me to believe in myself and go after my dreams. It has meant a lot to me to really achieve in modeling and not just be interested in pictures.

HOW DO YOU MANAGE TO MAINTAIN SUCH AN INCREDIBLY SEXY BODY?

I'm careful about what I eat; try hard to live a clean and healthy life. I work out, but not nearly as much as I want to. All in all, I try to be good about my habits and be a good example for others.

WHAT PART OF THAT SEXY BODY ARE YOU THE MOST PROUD OF?

I'm careful about what I eat; try hard to live a clean and healthy life. I work out, but not nearly as much as I want to. All in all, I try to be good about my habits and be a good example for others.

I LIKE A MAN WHO WILL PAY ATTENTION TO ME, MAKE ME
LAUGH, TREAT ME LIKE A PRIN-CESS BUT ALSO BE A STRONG MAN WHO KNOWS WHAT HE WANTS AND HOW TO GIVE ME
MY SPACE WHEN I NEED IT.

GLAM JAM
DISCOVERY

TELL US ONE UNUSUAL OR UNIQUE THING ABOUT YOURSELF THAT OTHERS MAY NOT KNOW.

There are moments in a modeling career that can often times be one of the funnier memories to look back on when you need to smile. My friend, colleague and model you've featured in Glam Jam, Chrissy Victoria and I were at a beach shoot with Rick at Plum Island. We were running around topless after doing some implieds when we noticed a random fisherman just checking us out. Then he started trying to talk to us. It was pretty awkward, but also really funny. Here he was expecting to catch a few fish, but an instead got an eyeful of a couple of naked girls running around the beach.

WHAT IS THE MOST ADVENTUROUS THING YOU HAVE DONE?

I've had sex in a gym. That was a mighty adventurous evening. I probably shouldn't say any more about that adventure.

WHAT ARE YOUR FUTURE GOALS?

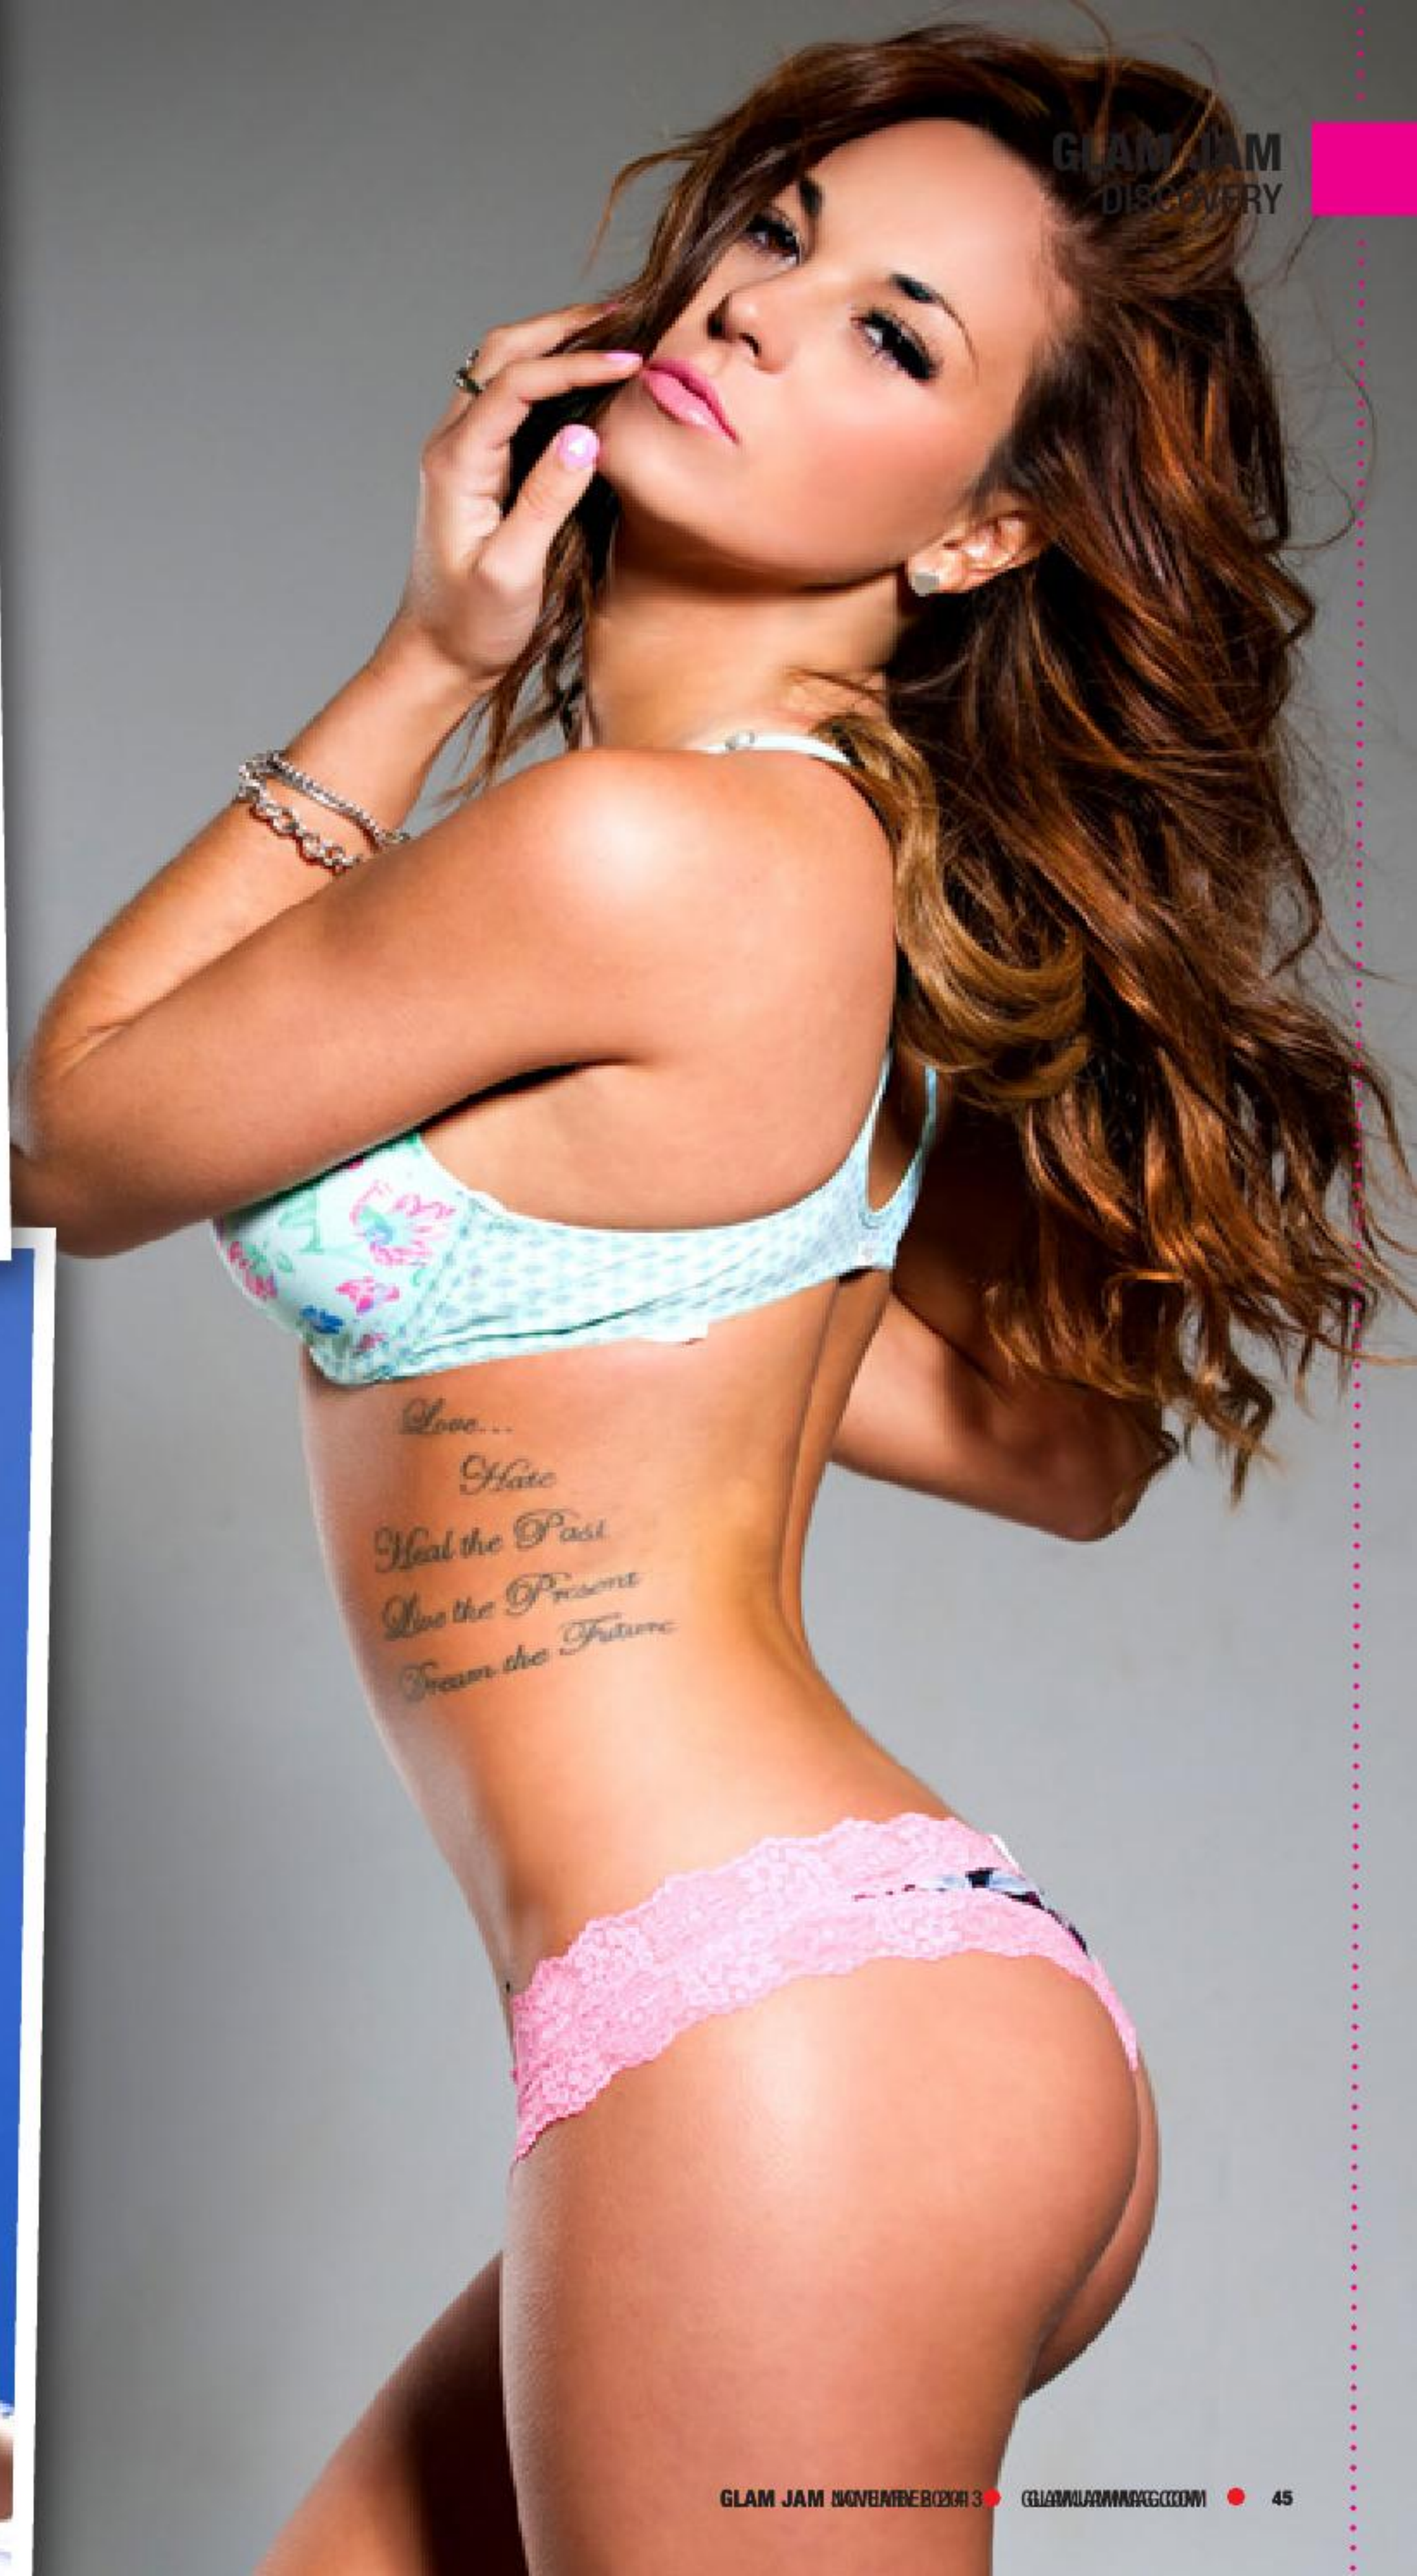

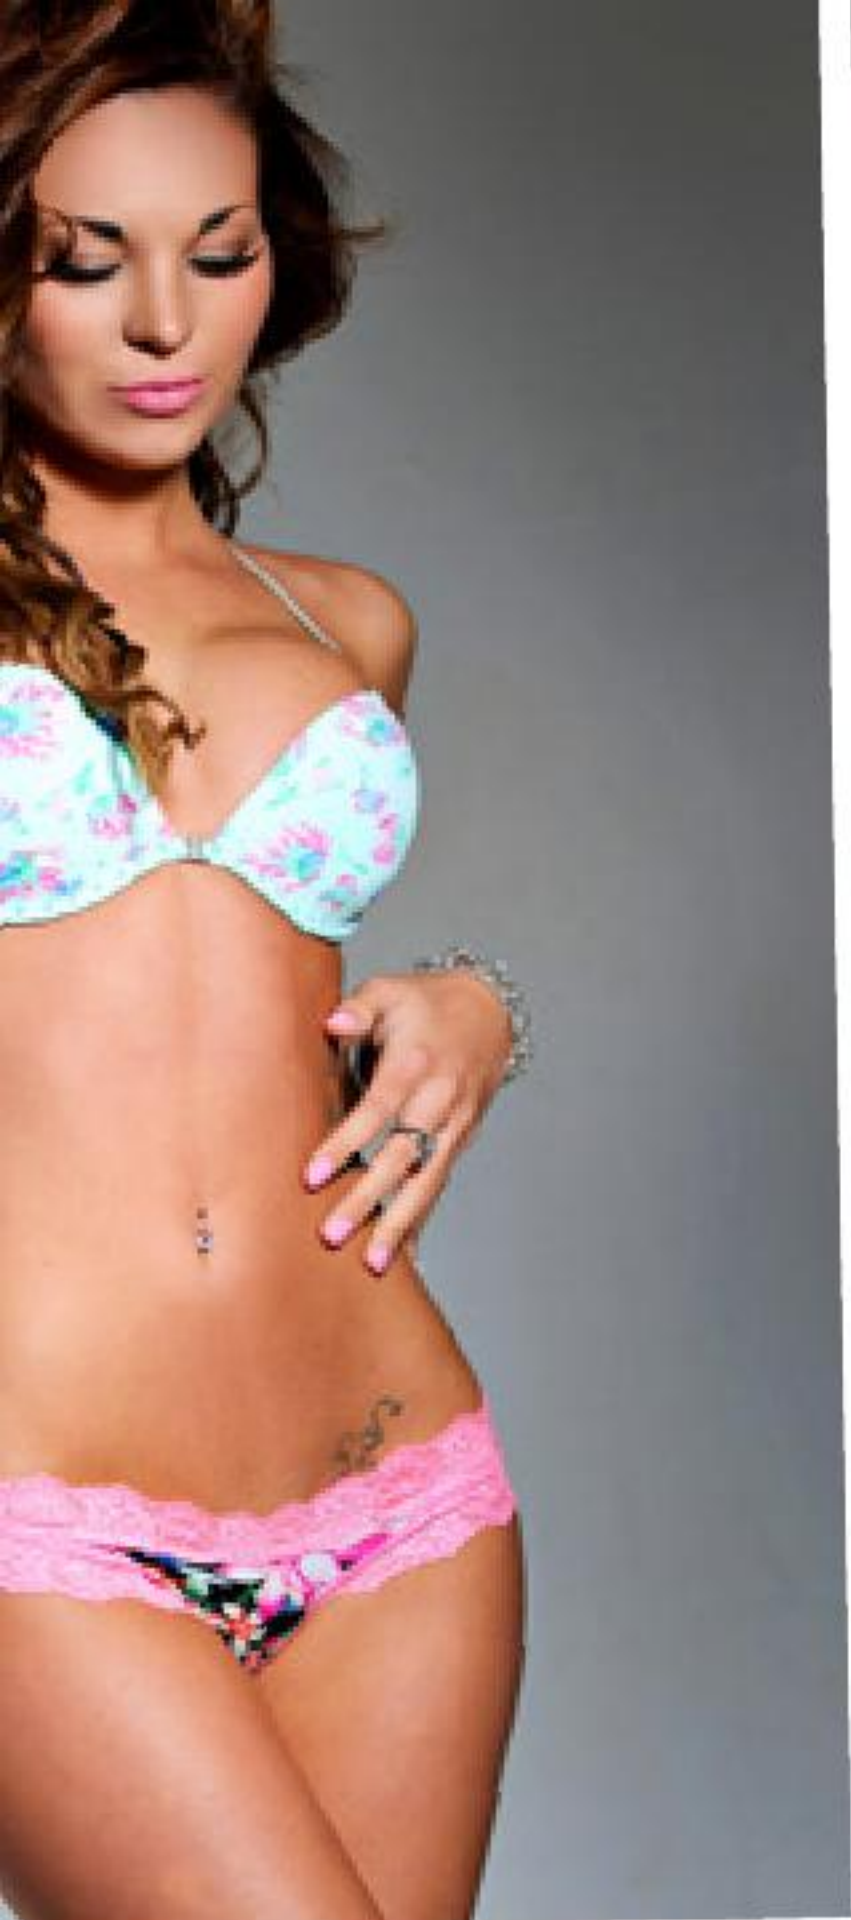

I've built goals that are quite simple; I want to be famous, hahaha!! If I can reach that height, that would be great. Over the past three years, Rick and I have built some good opportunities. I was in a beautiful calendar with a naughty name twice, the Dirty Girl calendar, and I loved being Miss November in 2012 and Miss January in 2013 and being a part of that fine project. I've also had spreads in Men's Fitness and Muscle & Fitness magazine on-line. These are the kinds of opportunities that are getting me closer to my dreams.
